THE EVOLUTION OF BIGFOOT CONTINUES...

Achieving polished perfection on a surface as efficiently as possible is the primary goal of the BigFoot project. BigFoot simplifies the polishing process, substantially reducing polishing time and producing optimum results. Thanks to the complete range of polishers, pads and compounds, all designed to work in synergy, BigFoot's innovative system based approach guarantees exceptional results in less time for virtually any polishing application.

TYPES OF MOVEMENT

Random Orbital

Random orbital polishers are a combination of rotary and standard orbital polishers. The speed of a random orbital polisher is counted in orbits per minute (OPM).

Unlike a rotary polisher, which is forced to spin, a random orbital polisher actually rotates from the momentum created by the high speed orbital motion. The backing plate follows an orbit and is free to rotate about its own central axis. The pattern is truly random, as the combination of stroke length, pad size, pad grip, and speed can alter the pattern of motion.

Pros

- The random orbital movement is at present the best compromise in terms of effectiveness and surface treatment quality.
- Achieves the perfect finish that's free of swirls and holograms
- Great for learning - This machine very safe and easy to use for beginners.

Cons

- Cut not as strong as a rotary

Rotary

Rotary polishers spin the pad in a circular motion on a central axis, with the highest velocity being at the pads edge. Rotary tends to be the most invasive type of movement on the surface. This consistent circular motion generates substantial cut (friction).

Pros

- Unparalleled cut and capability
- Stronger than any other type of machine

Cons

- Most invasive on paint surface - Generating friction and heat which can lead to burns, and damage a vehicles finish, causing strike through and rotary induced swirl marks if used improperly.
- Difficult to master (not recommended for beginners) - In the hands of a skilled technician a rotary tool features the lowest vibration levels of any tool movement, but can take a great deal of time to learn to use the tool properly.
- Multi-step polishing - to remove swirls

Gear Driven

A gear driven polisher combines both the rotary and orbital motions into one forced action. The difference between this and a random orbital polisher is that a forced rotation drives both orbit and rotation motions, compared with a random orbital movement which only drives orbit and relies on momentum to rotate the pad. This means that a forced rotation gear driven polisher has a consistent pattern. They are as easy to use as a random orbit but slightly more aggressive on surfaces than a random orbital movement and generates a generally higher vibration level.

Pros

- Stronger than a random orbit polisher, yet safe for beginners

Cons

- Fixed rotation can limit it's polishing capabilities

RUPES LHR12E DUETTO BigFoot 'Duetto' Electric Random Orbital Sanding and Polishing LUX Kit

All-in-one sanding and polishing system for painted surfaces.

The RUPES LHR 12E Duetto is the result of countless hours of research and development to design what is arguably the most user-friendly dual action polisher available. The 'Duetto' continues the RUPES tradition of engineering polishers that have a larger orbit (throw) than anything else on the market. The LHR 12E Duetto, the little brother to the larger LHR 15III and LHR21III, features a respectable 12 mm orbit, enabling it to be used as a sander or polisher.

Designed with the professional detailer in mind, the RUPES LHR 12E Duetto is thoughtfully engineered with superb ergonomics and user-friendly switches and dials. The RUPES LHR 12E Duetto will provide hours of sanding and polishing with minimal user fatigue. The powerful 400 watt motor provides enough juice to keep the pad rotating, making it capable of removing heavy swirls, water spots, and scratches.

Dual Function: Sanding & Polishing

The RUPES LHR 12E Duetto and its 12mm orbit can be used with fine grit abrasives to speed up deep correction operations. The tool can then use foam pads and polishing compounds to refine the abrasive scratches and restore a flawless finish.

RUPES BIGFOOT COMPOUNDS & PADS

BigFoot abrasive compounds are the result of in-depth studies and research and consist of high quality abrasive mixes, all silicone free. Polishing compounds require a unique formula to assure that the product has the perfect combination of viscosity and aggressiveness. These unique compositions result in a product whose consistency delivers the best possible solution for uniform distribution on the polishing pad. Your polisher, and polishes is only as good as the pads you're using them with. RUPES has spent a considerable amount of time developing pads that would not only work the BigFoot Polishers, but actually take advantage of it to deliver best results.
